

About you

Are you someone who doesn't just think inside a closed system? Someone willing to jump the intellectual barbed-wire fence once in a while? Someone with a soft spot for the appeal of alternative economic models? Then you're in exactly the right place.

Are you someone for whom "disruptive" doesn't necessarily mean inventing new business models and technologies that promise even higher returns? Someone who firmly believes that truly disruptive social innovation must finally deliver distributive justice? Then you're in exactly the right place.

Are you someone who considers the old economic dogmas—the invisible hand of the market and the visible hand of the state—outdated? Someone who doesn't think in tired left-right templates and keeps the common good firmly in view above all else? Then you're in exactly the right place.

And everyone else who didn't score a perfect ten out of ten is welcome to stay, too. After all, we're all still learning ☐

© The Economics Coach 2026 (cover photo: artfoto-dima/Envato)